question open-ended instead of multiple choice. Taking away the multiple choice can make a question much more difficult, so it's a great idea to do it with questions that you feel are too easy. Simply ask the question and list out what answers you will accept on the slide. Any answer that exactly matches any of these will get the points. A word cloud is one of those out-the-box quiz types we talked about earlier. It works on the same principle as the British game show Pointless. Simply give your quiz players a category and ask them for the most get nothing. For example you could create a word cloud slide and ask your players for any of Billboard's top 10 female artists of all time. The answers that appear largest are the ones that word clouds are not categorised as quiz slides, so you'll have to make note of the scores yourself. Want to Make an Interactive and Online Pop Music Quiz for Free? It's never been easier. Simply click on the button below to start making modern and engaging quizzes that get remembered! The
